The Kentucky Colonel wishes a safe and pleasant summer vacation for all students and staff. Mrs. Frey invites you to check out books for summer reading now. FOUNDER'S DAY PLANS ARE UNDERWAY

May 9, 1982, will mark the 140th anniversary of the founding of the Kentucky School for the Blind. To celebrate this event special activities have been scheduled May 11-14th. An essay writing contest is being held in the upper and middle school. The student whose essay is chosen as best will read the essay in the Founder's Day assembly and receive a cash prize. A contest to choose a school slogan is also being held. Special history "newsbreaks" will be broadcast each day. Thursday, May 13, an all-school assembly will feature personalities from our past. That night a special concert, folksinging, and story telling will be held in the amphitheater. Friday, May 14, exhibits featuring animals, spinning, weaving and needlework, candlemaking, foods, butter making, music, and games will fill the campus. Lunch will be held on the grounds with a special ice cream churning contest to provide dessert. It is our hope that sharing the activities of our founders will help us understand our school a little better.

READING OLYMPICS BREAKS ALL RECORDS

For the third successive year, K.S.B. students have participated in the Reading Olympics sponsored by the March of Dimes. Students asked friends and relatives to sponsor them by subscribing money for each book read by the participant. In return, the students receive an "Olympic Medal", a certificate and complimentary picture from Stewart's. The activity has contributed many dollars to the March of Dimes in addition to stimulating leisure reading.

This year students broke previous records of total books read and total dollars collected. Forty-eight students volunteered and read a total of 526 books. $312.00 ^{was} collected and sent to March of Dimes.

Several students did an outstanding job. Mitzi Haney's sponsors contributed $57.80 and Philip Taylor was the top reader with 30 books. Four other students deserve honorable mention for their reading accomplishments: Terri Fry read 20 books, Mike Breeden read 27 books, Henry Walton read 24 books and David Hadl read 25 books.

We hope everyone enjoyed this activity and the opportunity to help others.

SKATING FUN

If you see a new trophy with two figures ice skating on top, it is the one given to the primary children. Volunteers at the Gardner Lane Rink gave lessons to the children. The children passed their tests of skills learned during their lessons and each child received a skating report card and a ribbon. The trophy is to help them remember their participation in this program. We thank the recreation leaders for providing this wonderful experience for the students.

THREE STUDENTS ADDED SINCE FEBRUARY

K.S.B. welcomes three new students to classes since the last Colonel was printed.

Robbie Blair from Rineyville in Hardin County has joined the elementary class. Rhonda Roeper from Bowling Green in Warren County has joined the primary class, and Tina Johnson from Berea in Madison County has joined the eighth grade.

MY EXPERIENCE WITH CAREER DAY

Debbie Stabile

At the Kentucky School for the Blind, the sixth through the twelfth graders had a Career Day on April 21. It was held in the south side of the dining room. The purpose for this whole day of activity was to help students to prepare for the future.

By 9:15 the dining room was packed and jammed. Mr. Robie Meadows spoke about "Developing a Vocational Plan." He was from the Bureau for the Blind. At 10:00 the students chose a career workshop to attend. Then after that, the students went to the south side of the dining room immediately.

At 11:00 Tim Crammer spoke about "Trends on the Job Market and an Update on Equipment Used by Visually Impaired Workers." It was very fascinating to hear all he had to say. At 12:30 Allan Steinberg spoke about "Academic and Vocational Opportunities." He was from Jefferson Community College. At 1:30 the students had a career workshop to attend. At 2:30 a panel of former students--Libby Williams, Adam Ruschival and Leslie Stevens--talked about their educational backgrounds.

By the end of the day, you had learned about different jobs and ideas of finding the right and suitable career, and it made me start to wonder what kind of a career I would like to do.

I liked Career Day. It helps to prepare us for the future. Some of the people there who spoke to us are totally blind and because of their blindness, it helps us to understand and to listen to what they have to say because we have the same problem.

ELEMENTARY EVENTS

The elementary classes of Miss Weston, Mrs. Gutmann and Mrs. McMillin are spending an active and interesting spring. Besides our regular classes, we are getting ready for the Kentucky Math Derby. We are currently working on our play "The Case of the Missing Parts of Speech" which we will be presenting May 21. We hope you can attend. We will finish our year with a birthday party and picnic. We wish everyone a good summer.

THE KEY TO THE FUTURE

Sandra L. Williams

Education is the key to the future. And whether or not the right doors are opened with this key is totally up to us. Many years ago young people with sight problems were banished from home and put in mental asylums for life. Today we have special schools, special equipment and a chance to achieve our goals. However, this world is sight-oriented and we all must learn to cope with it.

This year ten students are attending public schools part-time to get a glimpse of it before graduation. I am one of those ten. I chose to go to off-campus classes part-time to see if I could cope with many of the factors that I know will face me when I start college. I must admit it is not easy in some cases. A lot of the time, tests are written on the board and you are told to finish in a certain time period. If you can't see the board as I can't, you must ask the teacher or a classmate to read it for you. Notes are given daily in some classes, such as history and English. There are several ways to hurdle this. If you use print, you really don't have much of a problem. If you use braille, it is great to know how to use a slate and stylus.

Sometimes your itinerant teacher will get your notes for you. Speaking of teachers, an itinerant teacher is one who comes to the school and gives you tests if you can't see them. She will put things which are not in your texts in a form you can read.

I have discussed teachers, classes and notes. I only have one more thing to say--the other students. The students at other schools are really no different from us except they can see. They usually are friendly, but there are always those who make their comments. If you are shy, get over it. If you don't talk, they won't talk and besides you will probably get lost on the first day and need to ask directions. I know I did.

If the things I have written sound difficult, they are, but if you have the will and determination, you do overcome and it becomes easy. If you are thinking of attending public school while at K.S.B. in the future, do it. It's a great experience. It can really help you open new doors.

HAPPENINGS IN SPECIAL SEVEN

The Special seventh grade class has concentrated on reading, creative writing, spelling, math, and pre-vocational activities this semester.

John Scrogam and David Hadl are anxiously waiting for return letters from Luke and Beau from "The Dukes of Hazzard." Jennifer Thornsberry has been attending the Cerebral Palsy School a half-day everyday. She has enjoyed swimming, bowling and making new friends. Tony Smither has been doing a good job washing tables and emptying garbage for the deaf-blind/multihandicapped classroom everyday. Kim Clevinger has worked hard on her pre-vocational activities.

We are looking forward to Zoo Day, Founder's Day and a special field trip to a recycling plant to turn in cans we have collected. Afterwards we will go out to lunch.
